MTi's NFL Selections / Week 2

MTi's Newsletter Side Play

4.5-Star JACKSONVILLE +2 over Tennessee - The "natural" play here is to take the Titans because they were projected to be better than the Jaguars this season and the Titans are 0-1 and the Jaguars are 1-0. It would seem unnatural for the Jaguars to start 2-0 and the Titans to start 0-2. However, a look at the historical results for week two reveals that teams off a TD-plus cover in week one in which they were turnover free are 13-0 ATS over the past dozen years vs a team that suffered a TD-plus loss in which they did not have a positive takeaway margin. The SDQL text is:

week=2 and p:ats margin>=7 and op:ats margin<=-7 and p:TO=0 and op:TOM>=0 and season >=2005
```

The Jaguars have been suffering for some time now and with Fournette, a stubborn defense and a fierce pass rush, both they and their fans will be confident in their home opener. Jacksonville is a character-revealing 7-0 ATS when they are at home off a road win and they are facing a team that is behind them in the standings, as long as they are not laying a TD or more. The SDQL text is:

```
team=Jaguars and line>-7 and H and p:AW and WP>o:WP and season >= 2005

Jacksonville is also 8-0 ATS (+8.00 ppg) when playing a divisional opponent that is averaging fewer than 25 rushes per game and they are off a game as a road dog. The SDQL for this one is:

team=Jaguars and DIV and p:AD and oA(rushes)<25 and season >= 2011

The Titans, on the other hand, are 0-15 ATS when they are off a game as a favorite and facing a team that has scored on at least 40% of their drives season-to-date, as long as that opponent does not have 13-plus wins on the season. Check it out with this SDQL text.

team=Titans and p:F and oS(PTD+RTD+FG)/oS(drives)>=0.40 and o:wins<13

Finally, the Titans have not yet developed the mental toughness to perform well on the road against their division, going 0-11 ATS their last eleven trips to face divisional foes. The SDQL is a straightforward:

```
team=Titans and A and DIV and date>=20131201

It will very hard for the Titans to match the Jaguars' intensity in Jacksonville's home opener, especially with the Jaguars will be playing smashmouth football involving a bruising rushing game and a pin-their-ears-back pass rush.

Jaguars, easy.

MTi's FORECAST: JACKSONVILLE 31 Tennessee 17

MTi's Newsletter Totals Play

4-Star Washington at LA Rams UNDER 46 - Kirk Cousins was sacked four times last week in their 30-17 loss to the Eagles. This activates a pair of complementary performance indicators. For the Redskins we note that they are 0-12 OU (-9.29 ppg) as a dog on grass off a loss as a dog in which their QB was sacked four-plus times. The SDQL for this one is:

team=Redskins and D and surface=grass and p:D and p:L and 4<=op:sacks and date>=19981101

Each of Washington's last five in this spot have stayed under by more than a TD.

For the Rams we note that they are 0-10 OU (-10.60 ppg) off a home win when their opponent's QB was sacked at least four times in their last game. The SDQL is:

team=Rams and p:HW and 4<=opo:sacks and date>=20041212

In their last two games in this spot, the Rams have allowed a total of six points.

So, the Redskins should adopt a more conservative game plan to protect their QB and the Rams should focus on exploiting their opponent's perceived poor pass protection and this should lead to a low-scoring game.

In addition, the Rams are 0-12 OU (-11.96 ppg) when the line is within 3 of pick on grass after a game in which they outgained their opponent and 0-8 OU (-11.69 ppg) off a game as a favorite in which they had fewer than ten incompletions.

With the Redskins 0-12 OU when they are off a game as a dog and visiting a team that has averaged fewer than 280 yards of offense per game season-to-date, we are on the UNDER.

SportsBook Breakers' NFL Selections / Week 2

SBB's Newsletter Side

4-STAR NY Jets over OAKLAND – Last season was a breakout season for the Raiders that went about as well as could be expected, or hoped for this season. In that 12-4 campaign, they won by more than 14 points exactly one time, a 17-point victory. This team's defense is not set up to completely dominate teams in the way in which this line suggests.

Just last week, Oakland was a dog in Tennessee, winning 26-16. That means this line has shifted more than 15 points from where they were last week. Teams which have a line in week two and least eight points lower than in week one are 52-67-4 ATS (week=2 and line-p:line<-8).

The total here has also dropped seven points from last game. Teams which saw its total drop by at least 6.5 points from last game are 368-483-22 ATS (total-p:total<=-6.5).

Even though that game went significantly under the total, Oakland scored 1.5 points more than expected. The Raiders are 0-11 ATS (-11.0 ppg) since Oct 21, 2012 at home off a game as a dog where they scored more than expected last game but not 15+ more than expected (team=Raiders and H and 15>p:dps>0 and p:D and date>=20121021).

For New York, they are big dogs for the second straight week after being nine-point dogs in week one in Buffalo. Teams which are dogs of more than six points after being dogs of at least seven points last game since 2006 are 150-121-5 ATS (line>=6.5 and p:line>= 7 and season>=2006).

Their offense was underwhelming last week, as they gained just 214 yards in a 21-12 loss. The Jets are 7-0 ATS (9.36 ppg) since Oct 16, 2014 coming off a loss where they had less than 300 total yards (team=Jets and p:TY<300 and p:L and date>=20141016).

Of the 12 points they mustered in that game, 50% of them came on a pair of field goals. The Raiders are 0-16 ATS (-10.25 ppg) since 2003 when they are off a road game and favored over a team that has scored more than 25% of its points from field goals (team = Raiders and p:A and F and oS(FG*3) / oS(points) > 0.25 and season >= 2003).

SPORTSBOOK BREAKERS PREDICTION: OAKLAND by 6

SportsBook Breakers' Total Play

4-STAR Tennessee and Jacksonville UNDER – Jacksonville has found a formula that works. They have many shortcomings on the offensive side of the ball but make up for it with an outstanding defense. On offense, they are going to be happy to try to play as conservatively as possible, particularly in games that can be tight or they can take a lead. Even if they wanted to be more explosive, there is going to be an adjustment period after losing by for their best weapon in Allen Robinson last week. Tennessee is also one of the few run first teams left in the league and we see the combination pushing the result to the under.

Jacksonville was a five-point dog last week and went into Houston and won. They did not just win, they won big, 29-7. Underdogs coming off a 20+ point win are 189-223-8 OU (D and p:margin>=20).

The biggest key for Jacksonville was protecting the ball, as they did not commit a single turnover. The Jaguars are 0-7 OU (-7.57 ppg) since Dec 22, 2002 as a home dog coming off a road game where they did not turn the ball over (team=Jaguars and HD and p:turnovers=0 and p:A and date>=20021222).

On the other side of the ball, creating pressure and forcing turnovers was the whole key to their game. They forced four turnovers. The Titans are 0-7 OU (-9.79 ppg) since Oct 08, 2006 on the road facing an opponent that is forcing more than 2.25 turnovers per game (team=Titans and A and 2.25<=oA(o:TO) and date>=20061008). Also, teams off wins as at least 3-point dogs where they forced 4+ turnovers are 111-157-4 OU (po:turnovers>=4 and p:line>3 and p:W).

Jacksonville picked up 19 first downs in the win and seven of those came rushing the ball. The Titans are 0-6 OU (-16.92 ppg) since Nov 09, 2014 facing an opponent that is averaging 7+ rushing first downs per game (team=Titans and 7<=oA(RFD) and date>=20141109).

SportsBook Breakers' Spotlight System

SportsBook Breakers has spent the past season focused on league systems and has found over 100 that are winners at well over the 55% required rate for the long-term success. PLAY ON: A dog of more than three points in matchups of 0-1 teams.

40-21-1 (3.80, 65.6%)

SDQL TEXT: week=2 and p:L and op:L and line>3

For much of the season, weekly systems and trends do not make sense. For instance, there is nothing particularly special about what happens or goes into week seven of the season. But the two times of the year where that is not true is in the first few weeks of the season, and the final weeks of the season, going into the playoffs. In those spots, because uniqueness of the situation and in the case of the early weeks, small sample size, how bettors react or overreact matter. This is one of those special week two spots.

A dog of more than three points in matchups of 0-1 teams are 40-21-1

The heart of the system gets back to a lot of what we look for in week one systems - people thinking they know more about teams than they really do. In this spot, both teams had ultimately disappointing week one efforts. Yet one team is being significantly valued over the other. As the results show, that is a mistake.

This season, there are four matchups of 0-1 teams and interesting, everyone of those games currently carries a line of five points or more. Take a long look at underdogs Houston, Indianapolis, New Orleans and San Francisco this week.

Pick Sixty Sports: Tips and Totals

Dennis Green was famous for his postgame tirade in 2006 where he declared, "They are (the Bears) who we thought they were," following a Monday Night Football loss with his Cardinals.

That rant always comes back to my mind at this time of year once we've seen each team play its first real game of the season. In this sense, it's really more of a question than a statement.

Is the Jaguars defense actually capable of holding any offense not run by Tom Savage or a rookie QB to single-digits?

Will the Bengals offense average less than 20 points this year for the first time since 2009, finally ending Marv Lewis' longstanding tenure as head coach?

Can the Rams backup their first 40-burger since 2014 with another win or will the market correction send them back to the mat, like so many Week 1 darlings before them?

SDQL Q & A

With the marvel of modern technology, the questions above are no longer limited to bar room chatter amongst casual bettors. The SDQL quickly and efficiently clears up any mystery while opening doors to the most likely possibility in the game ahead. Here are some real examples of profiles "live" in Week 2.

SDQL: H and PRSW < 7 and -3 < line < 3 and p:AW and P:W

Home teams like Jacksonville that won fewer than seven games last year are 23-16 ATS off a road win when facing a revenge-minded foe and the line is within three points of 'Pick'. Only 14 of the 39 games in this sample finished over the total, a 64% lean to the "Under".

SDQL: tpA(o:points) >= 22 and H and p:AW and po:points < 17 and DIV and p:DIV and NB

The Jags allowed 25 points per game (PPG) last season and they are coming home off a big divisional road win. The fact that this game is also divisional means that Tennessee is going to bring its A-game. Off a strong defensive game with no bye week in-between (NB), teams like the Jags are just 20-36-1 ATS in database history.

The setup for this game favors the Titans and I think they certainly have a better offense. Throw in the fact that Jaguar WR Allen Robinson (knee) is done for the season with a torn left ACL. No official play yet but I'm leaning towards Tennessee and the "Under".

FLAT-LINERS

How do you describe Cincinnati's 20-0 loss to Baltimore in Week 1? It's their biggest Week 1 blowout since 2012, when the Ravens whupped them 44-13, and their fewest points since a 12-7 loss to Denver in 2009 (SDQL: team=Bengals and week=1).

This code displays how HC Lewis has performed following a game where he was either held to single-digits or lost by more than 20 points.

SDQL: team = Bengals and (p:points < 10 or p:margin <= -20) and coach = Marvin Lewis and date >= 20081214

I won't spend a lot of time on this game because it's the Thursday nighter but Cincinnati's recent record in this spot is impressive at 10-3-1 ATS. They've outscored opponents 25-20 on average and after what we saw from Houston's offense, it's not wonder the Bengals line has caught fire.

Note that this angle is also "live" in Week 2 for Houston, Seattle, San Francisco, Indianapolis and the New York Giants. It is not a good spot for New York, either, with them going 4-13 SU/ATS since 2009. New York was not held to single-digits once in 2016 and their only blowout loss was in the Wild Card Round to Green Bay (38-13). It will be interesting to see how they respond under the Monday night lights.

SDQL: (p:points < 10 or p:margin <= -20) and team = Giants and season > 2008

40-BURGERS 'LIGHT'

To broaden our sample size of Week 2 teams like the Rams off a strong offensive showing, we were able to reduce the 'points' parameter to 31. The database record for teams that put up big numbers in their opener is 46-66-6 ATS. It applies to Los Angeles as well as the Chiefs and Lions.

SDQL: week = 2 and p:points > 31

The road record is particularly troubling at 26-42-3 ATS (38-percent) and that applies to Detroit, but it is countered by an 8-2 ATS record on Monday Night Football.

You are only limited by your imagination with SDQL and if you have any specific questions, contact me @PickSixtySports. You can also check out the Trend Mart for top systems "live" during the current week.

PICK SIXTY PLAY OF THE WEEK

We set off on the right foot last week with our play on Panthers and 49ers to stay under the total. This week, the Vikings and Steelers caught my attention. Minnesota looked good at home against a bad Saints D whose offense was having a bad day. On a short week, the hit rate for non-conference road dogs of a Monday night game is 60-percent "Over" and the record since 2012 is 14-4-1 O/U.

SDQL: not C and AD and p:MNF and season > 2010

Pittsburgh beat Cleveland as usual and their recent regular season record after the Browns is 6-4 O/U. When favored, the Steelers went 5-0 SU and the scoring average in those games was 29-21 in favor of Pittsburgh.

SDQL: team = Steelers and po:team = Browns and REG and season > 2008 and F

HC Mike Tomlin's home record the last four years against non-conference teams is 6 overs and 2 unders. The eight games finished with an average 55.9 total points and Tomlin's road record against the NFC is solid as well (5-2 SU/ATS with 26.2 PPG).

team = Steelers and H and not C and season > 2012

Tomlin was 7-3 SU/ATS against Mike Zimmer when he was D-Co of the Bengals (2008-13), scoring 24 PPG. The Steelers offense didn't shift out of second gear last week but in Tomlin's five home openers beyond Week 1, he's averaged 28.8 PPG (tS(1@H)=0 and HF and 1 < week < 4 and team=Steelers and coach=Mike Tomlin). I think Minnesota is good for at least 20 here and have this game clearing the number.

Week 2 Prediction: Take the Vikings and Steelers OVER 45 points

Last Week: 1-0 | Season Record: 1-0

System Analysis

This week our College Football System of the Week research focused on conference contests. We looked at of course the obvious such as home favorites, road favorites, home underdogs and road underdogs. We uncovered several winning situations and we are going to share one of the best with you this week and most likely the others in the coming weeks.

Each week we review all of the college and pro games once they have all gone final. Our computer database allows us to see the overall performances of players and teams while allowing us the ability to isolate certain situations that may impact their upcoming games.

One of the situations we uncovered this week involves a conference game between Oregon State and Washington State taking place in Pullman Washington Saturday evening. Their results from last week triggered a very profitable situation which is active in their game against one another this week.

Last week Oregon State played host to the Gophers of the University of Minnesota. That game opened with Minnesota as a -1.5 point road favorite but by the time the game went off the line had moved dramatically making the Beavers of Oregon State -2.5 point home favorites. The Gophers were the play as they rolled to an easy victory 48 to 14. They must now go on the road to Washington State in a Pac 12 Conference battle.

For the Cougars of Washington State they hung on and pulled out the victory over Boise State as -10.0 point home favorites winning 47 to 44 coming up short when it comes to covering the spread. That line had opened with Washington State favored by -7.0 points and moved to double-digits by the time they kicked off Saturday night.

After reviewing last week's games and re-researching conference match-ups for the upcoming week we have developed a solid winning situation. Our system this week says to Play ON a conference road underdog coming off a favorite SU loss of 3 or more points in their last game and a non-lined game prior versus an opponent not off a conference home underdog SU win. This system has produced a record of 26-4-4 against the spread for 86.7 percent winners.

With all of the system parameters met this week's NCAA Football System of the Week calls for a play on the Oregon State Beavers plus the points at Washington State on Saturday evening. That is it for another week but do not forget to catch all of our NCAA Football and NFL Best Bets each day at Killer Cappars. Have a great weekend and as always good luck.
