Tracking The 2016 Season...

While the powerful SDQL is great for tracking complex and very specific handicapping information, it is also just as useful for tracking the basics. In this spot all season long we will track basic handicapping situations over the full season, as well as how they did in 2015.

SITUATION	2016 ATS RECORD	2015 ATS RECORD
HOME	44-44-3	117-132-7
HOME DOG	16-10-1	40-39-3

MTi's October Side Play of the Month

5-Star JACKSONVILLE -1.5 over the Raiders -- The SDQL research team has uncovered loads of perfect multi-season, league-wide systems this summer and this is one reason why MTi Sports Forecasting is doing so well in 2016. Here is one of them:

NFL teams that are on grass off a game as a home dog in which they were not turnover-free last week are 0-20 ATS when the line is within three of pick and they had more regular season wins than their opponent and their regular season win line in the current season is at least seven.

This one has cashed twice for us this season; both in week two. The Jaguars were in this spot in San Diego and they were hammered 38-14 getting three points and the Redskins lost 27-23 to the Cowboys laying three at home. So, NFL teams in this spot have now failed to cover 22 straight. See for yourself by running this SDQL text: p:HD and surface = grass and PRSW > o:PRSW and -3<=line<=3 and NB and p:TO>0 and RSWL>=7

The research team made good use of the newly added PRSW and RSWL parameters. This week, Oakland qualifies for the play-against system.

When we focus on the Raiders as a team, we find that they are 0-13 ATS when the line is within 3 of pick and vs a non-divisional opponent and they are off a home game in which they committed at least two turnovers.

Also, the Raiders are 0-9 ATS vs a non-divisional opponent when they are off a TD-plus loss in which they rushed for at least 50 yards fewer than their season-to-date average. The SDQL text is: team = Raiders and p:margin <= -7 and NDIV and p:RY - tA(tp:RY) <= -50 and date >= 20081102

Oakland lost EVERY one of the nine games by double-digits.

The Jaguars are learning how to win the close ones and how to never get discouraged. This is a great opportunity for them to continue their winning ways. Jacksonville is 9-0 ATS when the line is within 3 of pick off a game as a dog and they are facing a team that is averaging fewer than 25 rushes per game. The SDQL text is: team = Jaguars and p:D and -3 <= line <= 3 and oA(rushes) < 25 and date >= 20101010

Note that the Jags are 9-0 SU winning by an average of 11.78 ppg.

The Raiders are 4-2 on the season, but they easily could be 2-4. The Jaguars are the play.

MTi's FORECAST: JACKSONVILLE 34 Oakland 24

MTi's Newsletter Totals Play

4-Star Cleveland at Cincinnati UNDER 46 -- There is no reason for the Bengals to take any risks on offense here. They should sit back and let the Browns make the first mistake. We are on the UNDER.

The Browns are 0-13 OU when getting at least six points vs a divisional opponent that is ahead of them in the standings. The SDQL text is: team=Browns and line>=6 and DIV and o:WP>WP and date>=20111200

In their last five games in this spot, the Browns have averaged 8.8 points per game.

The Bengals have played conservatively against struggling teams, as they are 0-8 OU when facing a team that is off three consecutive losses.

Also, the Bengals are 0-6 OU very recently when facing an opponent that has averaged fewer than 25 rushes per game. The SDQL is: team = Bengals and oA(rushes)<25 and date >= 20151105

This one is 0-3 OU THIS season, and each of the last two stayed under by double-digits.

Finally, Cincinnati is 0-16 OU on turf after a loss in which they had more third down conversions than punts and rushed the ball more than 22 times. The SDQL text is: team = Bengals and p:L and surface = artificial and p:3DM > p:punts and p:rushes>22 and season >= 2006

The last time these two had a total of 46 or more, was week three 1989 on Monday Night football. What is the assignable cause for this high total? The play is the UNDER.

SportsBook Breakers' NFL Selections / Week 7

SBB's Newsletter Side

4.5-STAR San Diego over ATLANTA – San Diego is currently only 2-4 on the year, but each of their four losses have come down to the final seconds of the game and they have a +18 scoring margin. They would be 6-0 against this line so far this season and we see no reason this game would be different.

However at 4-2, Atlanta is two games ahead of San Diego in the standings. The Chargers are 16-0 ATS when visiting any team with more wins (team=Chargers and A and wins<o:wins and date>=20120100).

That's the reason they are such significant favorites here but they've really struggled when favored. The Falcons are 0-9 ats since Oct 11, 2015 as a favorite (team = Falcons and F and date >= 20151011).

Last week, Atlanta lost a heartbreaking game against Seattle, 26-24. Julio Jones was the key figure in the game, not getting the call on the game's final play but picking up 139 yards in the game. The Falcons are 0-7 ats since Sep 29, 2013 coming off a loss where Julio Jones had at least 100 receiving yards (Julio Jones:p:receiving yards>=100 and p:L and date>=20130929).

It was a very competitive and physical game against the Seahawks, one of the toughest teams in the league. After playing Seattle (and Denver the week before in this case), it is tough for teams to bounce right back due to the physical toll. Since 2010, teams with less than eight days rest coming off a game against Seattle are 30-55-4 ATS (po:team=Seahawks and season>=2010 and rest<8).

San Diego played Denver last week on Thursday and gets extra rest now after a strong defensive showing where they allowed 11 points less than expected. The Chargers are 7-0 ats since Oct 20, 2013 off a game as a dog after they allowed at least seven points less than expected last game (team=Chargers and p:dpa<=-7 and p:D and date>=20131020).

Even the two turnovers they committed in that game did not derail San Diego in the win. The Chargers are 7-0 ats since Oct 18, 2015 as a dog after a game where they committed two turnovers (team=Chargers and D and p:turnovers>=2 and date>=20151018).

SPORTSBOOK BREAKERS PREDICTION: San Diego by 3

SportsBook Breakers' Total Play

4-STAR New Orleans and Kansas City Under – The Saints are an electric offense when playing at home but have jarring home/road splits that reveal a much different team on the road. At home since the start of 2015 they have averaged a huge 33.3 points per game. On the road over that time, just 19.7 points per game. The Chiefs might be the last team that is interested in getting in a score-for-score shootout and as nice favorites, they should be expected to control the game.

They were at home last week and that meant another shootout as they defeated the Panthers in a wild 41-38 contest. Teams which won a game in which they allowed at least 28 points last game are 210-268-10 OU (po:points>=28 and p:W).

In that game, New Orleans was able to overcome allowing 303 passing yards. The Saints are 0-7 ou since Dec 20, 1998 as a dog of more than three points coming off a home game where they allowed at least 300 passing yards (team=Saints and line>3 and po:passing yards>=300 and p:H and date>=19981220).

Kansas City has refused to be suckered in by high-octane offenses in the past such as the Saints team averaging 413 yards of offense. The Chiefs are 0-11 ou since Jan 06, 2007 and off a win and facing an opponent that is averaging at least 375 offensive yards per game (team = Chiefs and p:W and 375 <= oA(TY) and date >= 20070106).

Last week, Kansas City did strong work in the scoring department in a 26-10 win over Oakland which they controlled throughout. The Chiefs are 0-11-1 ou since Nov 27, 2005 as a home favorite off a game as a favorite where they scored at least 24 points and allowed more than three points (team=Chiefs and HF and p:points>=24 and p:F and po:points>3 and date>=20051127).

They limited the Raiders offense by controlling the game on the ground as they rushed 40 times for 183 yards. Teams playing in games where the total is at least 44.5 after they rushed the ball more than 35 times last game are 241-299-7 OU (p:rushes>35 and total>=44.5).

That dominating rushing game let Kansas City keep the ball for 36:45 in the win. The Chiefs are 0-11 ou since Sep 28, 1992 and at home and as a 7+ favorite and after they had more than 34 minutes of possession time (team = Chiefs and H and line <= -7 and 34 * 60 < p:TOP and date >= 19920928).

PLAY ON: Teams which are road favorites the week after their regular season bye

88-56-1 ATS (1.97, 61.1%)

SDQL TEXT: p:week+1!=week and AF and playoffs=0

In general, road favorites can be a scary proposition in the NFL. While in and of itself, being a road favorite is not a reason to be played against, there are far more situations where it makes sense to play against a road favorite than it does to play on. However, this is not one of those times as what we've researched here is a spot where it makes sense to play on road favorites.

Teams which are road favorites the week after their bye are 88-56-1 ATS.

This is a simple situation isolating when a road favorite is coming into the game with an extra week of rest. The thought process is that generally speaking, teams that are favored on the road are good squads, and that good teams area able to do more with the extra week of rest as far as preparation goes before traveling, and that extra edge is not reflected enough in the line.

This system actually became active late last week due to a line swing with Kansas City. Bettors recognized that this was a great spot for the Chiefs coming off the bye and pushed them to be favored during the week. And Andy Reid is exactly the kind of coach to like in this spot as evidenced by his long track record of post-season success.

Two teams are coming off byes this week and both of them are favored on the road coming into this week. Minnesota travels to Philadelphia and Tampa Bay goes to San Francisco as road favorites. Consider them this week.

System Analysis

Winning never gets old and that is true in any arena but winning money and the feeling it gives you is not reproducible with anything else. Week Seven is in the books and we had another huge winner with our College Football System of the Week last week.

Last week our System of the Week was a play against the Kansas Jayhawks as they traveled to Waco Texas to take on Big 12 Conference rival Baylor Bears. The system had a record of 2-22-1 ATS with the play against teams failing to cover by almost thirteen points per game with an average shortfall against the spread of -12.30 points per game. The Baylor Bears were installed as -34 point home favorites versus the Kansas Jayhawks.

The Bears did not let us down winning 49 to 7 which was good enough to cover the massive spread the oddsmakers assigned to the hometown Bears. The system's record improved with that victory the system record now stands at 2-23-1 ATS.

This week we researched teams coming off a conference shutout victory over in their last game. We wanted to know would they come into their next contest a bit over confident or highly motivated and ready to take down another opponent.

Of course the oddsmakers will make a play on that team a premium especially if they were already going to be a favorite over their next opponent. We wanted to know even at a premium price could we count on this team to respond in a positive manner and come away with another big victory both straight up and against the spread.

With the addition of a few simple parameters the system was almost a perfect winning situation for these teams. What we found was despite being favored by more than a touchdown home teams coming off a conference shutout victory easily disposed of opponents who are coming off a victory of their own on the road.

Our college system for this week reads Play ON a College Football home favorite of more than eight points coming off a conference shutout victory versus an opponent who is coming off a straight up road win in their last game. This system has a record of 15-1 ATS covering the spread by almost ten points per game with an average of 9.81 points per game.

With all the system parameters met this week's Cajun Sports NCAA Football System of the Week calls for a play ON the Western Michigan Broncos minus the 23 points over the Eastern Michigan Eagles on Saturday in Kalamazoo. Western Michigan is coming off a road victory over the Akron Zips winning 41 to 0 last Saturday. Their opponent this week the Eastern Michigan Eagles are also coming in off a road victory as they defeated the Ohio University Bobcats 27 to 20 in Athens Ohio.

Our NCAA Football System of the Week record now stands at 5-0-1 ATS on the season. This week our System of the Week calls for us to lay a lot of chalk once again but as we have seen with our previous week's systems' success we expect the Broncos to cover the 23 points the oddsmakers have assigned to them on Saturday. Have a great weekend and as always good luck.

Pick Sixty Sports: Tips and Totals

Rex Ryan and the Bills weren't very kind to the oddsmaker's total last week in Buffalo. In what was shaping up like a close game through 30 minutes, Ryan's offense put the pedal down to outscore San Francisco 28-3 in the second-half and clear the game's closing number (44.5) on their own, 45-16.

Buffalo set season highs for scoring, first downs (29) and rushing yards (312) last week. They also possessed the football more than 35 minutes for the second time in three weeks, increasing their season average to 28:17. Divisional road faves of -3 points or more that have taken over at least two of their past three games have a 40-26-1 ATS record vs. opponents on normal rest, seen here:

SDQL: tS(TOP/60>35, N=3) > 1 and AF and line <= -3 and DIV and o:NB

Miami had its best possession game all season last week against Pittsburgh (36:30) and when the host team in this profile won their previous TOP battle, the record improves to 21-11-1 ATS (65.6%).

SDQL: tS(TOP/60>35, N=3) > 1 and AF and line <= -3 and DIV and o:NB and op:TOP / 60 > 30

Buffalo leads the NFL in rushing yards with 166 per game and although LeSean McCoy injured his knee vs. the Fortyniners, he finished strong and is line for another big workload. Road faves that topped their season rushing average by more than 75 yards the previous week are 35-18-2 ATS since 2003 and when laying -6 points or less, the chalk is 29-11-2 ATS. The current run for this angle is 10-1 SU/ATS since 2012 and this is the first game "live" in 2016.

SDQL: AF and p:RY > tA(RY) + 75 and season > 2003 and line >= -6

Miami has not done a good job stopping the run this season, ranking 31st at 147 rushing yards allowed per game. Despite the NFL's steady increase on overall passing yards over the years, the following chart proves that a strong run game vs. a weaker run D will usually prevail.

SDQL: tA(RY) > 139 and oA(o:RY) > 139 and season > 2008

General data since 2009 favors the Bills 34-20 ATS and when the line was within three points of even, the strong rushing team was 10-5 SU/ATS. Sticking with tighter lines, divisional games in database history have a solid 19-11-1 ATS angle, seen here (8-1

ATS run):

SDQL: tA(RY) > 139 and oA(o:RY) > 139 and DIV and -3 <= line <= 3

Small home dogs off a huge upset win are 6-9-1 ATS and I'm not convinced Miami can follow up last week's game against this Bills machine that's rolling off the tracks. Other than the win over Pittsburgh, Miami has been a brutal first-half team all season and Buffalo is not likely to ease up on a division rival if they get them on the ropes. This game was already on my radar from a profile featured in the 2016 NFL Handicapping Bible (Offense + Pass Protection), so I followed up.

SDQL: tA(TY) > 335 and tA(o:sacks) < 2.5 and oA(TY) <= 335 and A and o:surface = grass and rest >= o:rest and -4 <= line <= 0

We're looking for road teams with a solid offense averaging more than 335 total yards per game (Bills = 337). They have to be able to protect their quarterback and when playing on grass with at least as much rest as the opponent, these teams are 57-percent ATS with over 170 plays. When you add a strong run game to the mix, the record for all lines goes to 60-percent ATS and faves like the Bills (-3) are 20-10-4 ATS. Miami has generated just three sacks the past three weeks and they had no answer for Buffalo's offense in either meeting last year (outscored 74-31).

Pick No. 1: Take the Bills

NFL + SDQL = NEUTRALIZED

The New York Giants and Los Angeles Rams are playing the second of four international games on this year's NFL schedule and for those that were unaware, the 'neutral' site has recently been added to SDQL. Here are some trends lining up for Week 7:

The fave in London has scored a minimum of 27 points every game but one since 2012.

The full game "Over" is on a 9-2 run in those 11 games.

Against decent D (Rams), the fave in London is outscoring their opponents 26-15 on average and riding a 4-game SU/ATS win streak (SDQL: F and site = neutral and REG and 18 < oA(o:points) < 24)

When one team is off a home game and the other was away before London, the team that should have the travel advantage is only 3-5-1 ATS and the three covers were laying -4, -6 and -7 (SDQL: p:H and site = neutral and REG and op:A)

The Power of Two-Team Teasers

One of the fantastic and unique features of www.killersports.com is the ability to run teaser trends. Each week we'll show off five such two-team teaser trends in this space utilizing this important and often overlooked area of handicapping. Any trend with a "p6" designation is for a play on/under 6-pt teaser and a trend including "m6" is for a play against/over 6-pt teaser.
