Result-Based Trends

The trends in the Week #1 issue of the Killersports.com NFL Newsletter are always sparse compared to subsequent issues. The reason is that 85% of the 25,000+ NFL handicapping situations in the database involve the result of the game the previous week.

In week #1 there are no results for the previous week, so none of the result-based trends are active. Next week, however, you will see numerous trends throughout this issue that will not be available anywhere else.

In This Issue:

- NFL Schedule Chart 2
- MTi's Week 1 Selections 3

MTi's NFL Selections / Week 1

MTi's Newsletter Side Play

4-Star CHICAGO +7 over Atlanta - The Falcons have a rematch of the NFC Championship game against the Packers next week so we expect them to treat this as a tightener for that one. We are grabbing the TD.

The last four times that the Bears were getting a TD at home, they covered, and they won three of the four straight up. In their only loss, they led going into the fourth quarter.

That said, the main reason for this selection is a simple, straightforward week one system that makes sense. The system is to play ON any team that finished below 500 in the last regular season vs facing a team that finished above 500 in the last regular season in week one. The SDQL text is:

PRSW>8 and week=1 and o:PRSW<8 and season>=1994

PRSW stands for Previous Regular Season Wins. Clearly, too much emphasis is placed on the W-L results from the previous season when making the week one line.

The Bears are a lot better than they looked last season, as they committed more turnovers than their opponent in eleven of their sixteen games last season - tops in the league. The prima donna Jay Cutler is gone and we expect the Bears will get back to their smashmouth style of play. Grab the generous points.

MTi's FORECAST: CHICAGO 20 Atlanta 17

MTi's Newsletter Totals Play

4-Star Pittsburgh at Cleveland UNDER 47 - Over the past nine seasons, these two have met 18 times and the OU line has been 44 or higher in only four of them. All four stayed under and we think this one will as well.

Rookie DeShone Kizer is starting at QB for the Browns. We expect the Browns' brass to start Kizer slowly in order to prevent costly rookie mistakes. The Browns have a decent defense and their best chance to win here is to keep the game low scoring and make it a battle of field position.

Cleveland has historically played it close to the vest as a big home dog, as they are 0-10 OU getting at least a TD at home. The SDQL text is:

team = Browns and H and line>=7 and date >= 20091210

Note that Cleveland has scored an average of 10.8 ppg over these ten games.

The Steelers also have demonstrated a tendency to play these games close to the vest, as they are 0-10 OU as a favorite by more than six points over a divisional opponent. Check out the complete game listing and stats summary by running this SDQL text:

team = Steelers and line<-6 and DIV and date >= 20101200

Note that the Steelers have allowed an average of 9.3 ppg in this spot.

Kizer looked dynamic at times in the preseason, and that is contributing to this bloated number. He will not look that good against the Steelers. Take the UNDER.

SportsBook Breakers' NFL Selections / Week 1

SBB's Newsletter Side

4-STAR WASHINGTON over Philadelphia – In one of the most confusing lines of the week, Washington is actually an underdog at home here. There might be no greater proof that the Carson Wentz and Eagles hype has gone too far. After all, a solid version of Wentz panning out would be where Kirk Cousins is right now. And with significantly better skill position players to go along with that, we see a lot of value on this home dog in week one.

It is not as if Philadelphia was some kind of juggernaut in 2016, as they went 7-9 overall, a game and a half back of Washington. Teams which lost at least 9 games last season and are away favorites in week one are 10-20 ATS (week=1 and tpS(L)>=9 and AF).

That actually extends out into the first month of the season as well in the first four weeks of the season, an away favorite that won less than eight games last season has gone 53-66-3 ATS (AF and week<=4 and tpS(W)<8).

And it is not as if Philadelphia has played all that well on the road, particularly when favored. The Eagles are 5-14 ATS (-5.45 ppg) since Nov 28, 2010 as a road favorite (team=Eagles and AF and date>=20101128).

Washington meanwhile has been quite solid the past two seasons as an underdog, and particularly as a home dog. The Redskins are 10-2 ATS (5.08 ppg) since Nov 29, 2015 as a dog (team=Redskins and D and date>=20151129). Also, the Redskins are 6-1 ATS (9.50 ppg) since Sep 20, 2015 as a home dog

Washington's home advantage is also noteworthy because despite Philadelphia's supposed defensive advantage, this is one of the highest total games of the week at 48. Home teams in week one in games with a total of at least 46 are 42-31-1 ATS (week=1 and H and total>=46).

SPORTSBOOK BREAKERS PREDICTION: WASHINGTON by 6

SportsBook Breakers' Total Play

4-STAR Atlanta and Chicago UNDER – This is a higher total than the Bears played to in all of 2016. They only played to one higher total in 2015. We are just not sure what about their current set of weapons paired with Mike Glennon would suggest they would want to play a high scoring game. On the other side, we see the grass surface slowing down the Falcons a bit and for them to have some bumps in the road with a new offensive coordinator.

Atlanta is a heavy road favorite in a game where the total one of the highest on the slate of week one. Road favorites in week one when the total is at least 45 are 8-21-1 OU (AF and total>=45 and week=1).

Last season was a breakout effort for the Atlanta offense. They had a league high 6.72 yards per play. Teams which averaged at least 6.09 yards per play last season since 2001 in week one next season are 8-18-1 OU (season>=2001 and week=1 and tpA(YPPL)>=6.09).

The passing game was particularly impressive 298.9 yards per game on an extremely impressive 8.94 yards per attempt. Since 1996, teams which threw for at least 250 yards per game last season in week one are 53-73-3 OU (season>=1996 and week=1 and tpA(PY)>=250).

PLAY AGAINST: A week 1 underdog who was favored by an average of at least 1.7 ppg last season.

24-50-2 ATS (-4.11, 32.4%)

SDQL TEXT: week=1 and D and tpA(line)<=-1.7

Week one is one of the most interesting weeks of the season to see where the lines are. They factor in a combination of team's success last year and current expectations. Sometimes, those expectations have changed significantly from where a team was a season ago.

A week 1 underdog who was favored by an average of at least 1.7 ppg last season are 24-50-2 ATS.

This is a spot where teams were thought of more highly last season on a whole than they are being valued in week one. It turns out that change in expectations is with good reason and tends to not move far enough away from a team.

In week one, three teams are seeing this drop in expectations. The largest of those drops comes Thursday night where Kansas City, who was favored by an average of 2.2 points in their games last season are nine-point underdogs in New England. On Sunday, Arizona, favored by an average of 3.1 points per game in 2016, is a one-point dog at Detroit and Seattle, favored by an average of 5.1 points per game in 2016, is a three-point dog at Green Bay.

Pick Sixty Sports: Tips and Totals

They say that the definition of insanity is doing the same thing over and over again and expecting different results. It's a valuable reference to keep in mind while getting ready for a new NFL season.

Did the 2016 season pan out the way you had planned? What approach did you take into each week and what adjustments can be made to produce better results? Even the great Bill Belichick is looking for constant tweaks to an already impressive recipe for gameplanning. If something isn't working, the Patriots change it and as we saw in February, this eventually pays off.

One adjustment that I made in 2016 was to reduce the size of my wagers in Week 1. And by 'reduce' I mean literally cut in half. Week 1 results were not panning out for me in recent years so there were three options: Skip Week 1 altogether, limit the number of games I bet on or reduce my wager amount.

With the power of SDQL and the ability it gives you to prepare for a new season, avoiding the Week 1 card completely was out of the question. I'm also of the belief that if you have a play, make it. They call it gambling for a reason and you can't let 'fear of losing' be the only thing that stands between you and a well thought out play.

The result was a 3-6 week with sides going 2-3 and totals 1-3. That stung but the net loss of two units was easy to recover from. Armed with the new data, I sharpened my pencil and followed it up with a 10-6 record the next two weeks (+3.7 units). My Over/Under picks from Week 2 to Week 13 went 44-20 (69-percent).

When the dust settled my bottom line read 86-69-3 (55-percent). Return on investment was +6.8%. Totals carried the weight, going 63-percent, and this year I will be a lot more selective when it comes to betting sides. On that note, let's get to it.

WEEK 1 AND THE PRSW

The PRSW parameter stands for 'Previous Regular Season Wins' and in general, teams with a worse record the previous season are a value play in Week 1 as books shade lines towards the more obvious public side. This simple query gives a clean look at each team's record from 2016:

SDQL: PRSW and team and season=2017

In Week 1, the database history (DBH) for team's with a lesser record the previous season says 58-percent ATS. The more recent record since realignment reinforces this angle's durability. In Week 1, teams with a worse record went 124-85-6 ATS (59-percent).

SDQL: week = 1 and PRSW < o:PRSW and season > 2001

It's worth noting that Week 1 is the strongest of all regular season weeks to apply this angle. Only two other weeks (12 and 16) even have a record of 53-percent ATS or better. You'll also note that home and away teams have nearly identical win percentages in DBH but road teams in more recent years show a slightly stronger edge.

Flat betting road teams since 2011 produced a 26-15-1 ATS (63-percent) record vs. 59-percent for home sides. Single-digit underdogs were even stronger, going 24-10-1 ATS (71-percent).

SDQL: week = 1 and PRSW < o:PRSW and A and season > 2010 and 0 < line < 10

This is added value against public perception and it suggests paying a little extra attention this week to the Chiefs, Jets, Giants, Jags, Chargers and Saints. All six are getting more than a field goal as of Wednesday.

PICK SIXTY PLAY OF THE WEEK

San Francisco's season started off last year with a 28-0 win over the newly relocated Rams. What a way to welcome someone back to California! The win improved San Fran's recent record in home openers to 11-4-1 ATS and just five of those 16 games finished over the total.

SDQL: ts(1 @ H) = 0 and team = Fortyniners and H and season > 2000

The Niners haven't won a home game since then but they have a talented new coach with a flair for offense. Kyle Shanahan will act as head coach and O-Co with help from Mike LaFleur and Mike McDaniel. It's a six-year deal that's sure to pay dividends at some point but I don't see this offense exploding vs. a strong Carolina D. And don't think for a second that Panthers coach Ron Rivera is unaware of who is calling plays on the opposing sideline.

SDQL: coach = coach = Ron Rivera and oP:points > 30 and season > 2012

Shannon and his Falcons offense ripped the Panthers for 48 and 33 points in two meetings last year. As you can see with the above query, Rivera's record vs. teams that scored more than 30 points against him in the last meeting is 4 overs and 9 unders. If it has happened twice in a row vs. this same opponent, all three games stayed under and the average score was 26-11 in favor of Carolina.

Carolina wasn't overly happy about starting this game out on the west coast but it does get their longest trip of the season, distance wise, out of the way. QB Cam Newton's road record against teams that had fewer than five wins last year is 4-1 SU/ATS and 1-4 O/U.

SDQL: Panthers:Cam Newton:PY > 0 and opS(W @ REG) < 5 and A Week 1 favorites with a home game on-deck are an impressive 35-15 SU when the total is 44 or more and while I wouldn't jump to lay these points, I'm more than happy to take advantage of the 13-35-2 O/U angle that's "live" (SDQL: week = 1 and F and n:H and total >= 44).

SDQL: week = 1 and PRSW < o:PRSW and REG and H and tpS(W @ week=1) = 1

Finally, we can see with the above code that home teams who had a worse record than their opponent are 29-46-2 O/U if they won at home in Week 1 last year. We're looking for a strong defensive effort from the home team as it tries to repeat last year's opening week effort. They may have had a worse record than their guest but with crowd noise impacting the opponent's offense, we might be getting just enough edge to keep this one low.

Week 1 Prediction: Take the Panthers and 49ers UNDER 48 points

Coming Next Week:

Result-Based Trends

The trends in the Week #1 issue of the KillerSports.com NFL Report are always sparse compared to subsequent issues. The reason is that 85% of the 25,000+ NFL handicapping situations in the database involve the result of the game the previous week.

In week #1 there are no results for the previous week, so none of the result-based trends are active. Next week, however, you will see numerous trends throughout this issue that will not be available anywhere else.
