PICK SIXTY SPORTS WEEKLY TIP:

The Green Bay Packers are storming into Miami this weekend for their first non-divisional game since Week 2 vs. the Jets. Green Bay spent the past three weeks sorting through its first round of divisional matchups and all things considered, the Pack is feeling pretty good. They are 2-1 vs. the North, tied for first with the Lions and their rematch vs. Detroit won't take place until Week 17 at the frosty confines of Lambeau Field.

When a non-Conference team is coming off a trio of divisional matchups with no bye week to catch its breath, that might seem like a natural letdown spot but database history suggest otherwise. Since 1989, these teams are 89-57-2 ATS (61-percent) and the more recent record, since realignment in 2002, improves to 18-7-1 ATS (72-percent). See for yourself with this code:

SDQL Text: not C and p:DIV and pp:DIV and ppp:DIV and week = ppp:week + 3 and season >= 2002

Miami's been sitting pretty off a bye week following that 38-14 blowout win over Oakland. We have no doubt they'll put forth a strong effort here to try and earn Joe Philbin a win over his former team and as a home dog, Miami is a respectable 5-1-2 ATS under Philbin. In this case we just feel the Dolphins are outclassed and are willing to lay up to -3 points on the tough road favorite.

Pick: Take the Packers
