PICK SIXTY SPORTS WEEKLY TIP:

Thursday games have a knack for spicing up the NFL's playoff picture ahead of a busy weekend and San Diego's upset win over Denver has certainly added some pressure to teams like Baltimore and Miami. Somehow the Jets and Titans still have a pulse, too, and each of those teams is getting points on Sunday against a more talented and equally desperate NFC foe. Tennessee returns from a disappointing road trip that ended with a 50-burger in Denver and given the situation, this could be a tough spot for the Titans to bounce back.

SDQL TEXT: H and site streak = -3 and t:NB and REG and season >= 2010

Home teams off three-straight road games are 6-12 SU/ATS the past three seasons and coming off a big divisional win, the Cards are in no position to take their foot off the gas. Arizona's main competitors for the NFC Wild Card are San Francisco and Carolina who respectively are playing winnable game against the Bucs and Jets. Arizona owns the tie-breaker over Carolina by virtue of a Week 5 win. Including that game they've scored 20-plus points nine games straight (26.4 avg). Against a road weary Titans D who allows 24.5 on average, look for Bruce Arians to design a gameplan that gets the Cards in position for a 'W'.

Pick: Take the Cardinals Team Total OVER 22 points
