PICK SIXTY SPORTS WEEKLY TIP:

After struggling for years against teams they 'should' beat, Dallas finally seems to have pulled things together in 2014 with home wins over the Saints, Texans and New York Giants. Their recent success has inflated this line against Washington to -9.5, fairly steep for a team who is 5-12 laying points at home under Jason Garrett. It's also boosted the total up around 49.5 points and given the current setup, we've circled this primetime divisional tilt for a value play on the under.

SDQL Text: DIV and AD and p:HW and NB and (p:points + po:points) < 44 and season >= 2003 and REG

Washington is off a 19-17 win over the Titans and as this team holds its breath for the return of RG3, we won't hold ours waiting the offense to suddenly start producing. The Skins have scored 20 or less in four-straight games and as you'll see with the above code, divisional road dogs in this spot have hit 61-percent on the under with more than 100 plays since 2003. The past four years have been staying under at a rate of more than 70-percent (8-20 O/U) and when the spread is more than +8 points, the sad sack road squad has scored an average of just 10.6 points per game. Even if Dallas were to hit '30' in this game, we don't see Washington doing enough damage to get this total into the 50's.

Take the Redskins-Cowboys UNDER 49.5 points

Pick Sixty Sports hit its Best Bet on the Chiefs last week and the NFL run continues: 13-5-1 ATS last 19 picks! Visit www.picksixtysports.com for NFL picks, trends and winning systems!

Note: It is not SportsBook Breakers recommendation to make plays based solely on one trend (our selections at killercappers.com don't). Weigh these trends along with other factors accordingly.
